 This is why these days are called Purim, after the word Purim.
 Therefore because of all the words of this letter, as well as all they seen they had experienced,²⁷ the Jews established and made it a custom for them, for their descendants all who should join that it might not be repealed, that they should continue these days as feasts each year, and that these days should be remembered and kept throughout every generation, every family, and every province, and every city.
 And these days of Purim should not pass away from among the Jews nor the remembrance disappear among their descendants.
